Buoys and ropes were thrown overboard. One man swimming close to the ship caught a life-buoy and was picked up by one of the boats. Another drifted alongside and was hauled on board. A third was rescued from the bark's boat, which was full of water. The Abeona had seen the Alabama's light for an hour or more. Thinking it was a tug she waited to be towed up the Clyde when she struck. The Abeona sunk in about four minutes. Captain James Montgomery of Ireland, Mr Caldwell—one of the owners of the bark—five Englishmen and one Swede went down with the bark. The three persons who were saved came on to New York on the Alabama.

The testimony of Superintendent McMullen places the blame on the engineer, who is in custody, and the conductor.

The train was drawn by two locomotives, and consisted of several baggage and express cars, and an unusual number of passenger coaches. The open draw was not observed by the engineer. Both engines and all the baggage and express cars plunged into the canal, filling the chasm and leaving no room for the passenger coaches. The fight among the operators of the Pacific Mail and Panama Railroad is expected to culminate to-day. It seems that the Panama Railroad undertook recently in consideration of the proposition to loan a half million of dollars to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company to take mortgages on the new steamers now being finished. Some of the stockholders of the Panama company opposed this measure and made public their reasons why the loan should not be granted, and now the friends of the proposition, who claim to be in a majority, give their reasons for favoring the loan.

Patrick Dougherty was found on Clay street to-night with an ugly wound in his head. He was very weak from loss of blood. He said some person unknown had struck him with a knife. Dougherty received surgical aid at the city prison.

Hon. J. F. Swift was enthusiastically received. His subject was Monopolies and the Leaders of the People. He gives a ringing philippic against the corruptions of the times and the tyrannies of monopoly, declaring that the people are aroused to the dangers threatening the State and that they will, irrespective of party names or platforms, reform the political world by deposing corrupt men in every station and defeating corrupt means everywhere. The audience is composed of the best classes of the city. Many ladies are present. The speaker is frequently interrupted by applause. He denounces in unmeasured terms the policy of the Railroad Company in endeavoring to dictate the legislation of the State by every corrupt means in its power, and says its hold on the people must be and will be broken in the coming election.

The People's Protective Alliance is holding a meeting with closed doors to-night, as is the Democratic Municipal Convention.

The Democratic Municipal Convention has nominated Dr. A. J. Bowie and Philip Roach for the State Senate, also a full Assembly ticket. The names of the latter cannot be obtained. The Legislative Convention is still at work on the nominations of School Directors and Supervisors.

There is a great deal of excitement here, yet all are in wonderful spirits and are daily entertained in the opinion that no more delightful locality could have been chosen for a summer resort. It seems the deer have had a presentiment of coming evil. They make themselves scarce accordingly. The fish are better disposed, but unfortunately it is considered a bler in [illegible] to hunt deer, though unsuccessfully, than [illegible] relate. Nevertheless, we are content and happy. Rest and freedom from care was our object of coming hither, and we are doubtless making our trip a success in that particular.

We hope soon to report something of more importance, as a grand hunt is in contemplation.

NOT FOR OREGON

Any [illegible] who has observed the decent and honorable way in which party affairs have been managed in this State will see at a glance that the following from the San Francisco Call was never designed for the latitude of Oregon:

Thomas Jefferson, speaking of the parties of his time, said: "We are all Republicans and we are all Democrats." So at this day it may be said with equal truth that we are all Republicans and all Democrats, for the cardinal principles of both parties are endorsed by all Americans, and there is now nothing left in either anything beyond the cardinal principle. All other questions have been settled and finally disposed of. The issues of the day are not claimed to be more than they are in any sense. [illegible] both organizations. Republicanism and Democracy have a higher [illegible] than is sometimes ascribed to them, but they have been perverted to represent [illegible] from those which originally attached to the terms. [illegible] brought cannot perhaps be better illustrated than by referring to a little incident which occurred yesterday on [illegible] street. A laboring man, but a man of thoughts as well as work, was accosted by one of the many curbstone statesmen that abound in this city, and taken to task for his violent inclination toward independence in political action. Being pressed to answer whether he was a Democrat or a Republican, he replied: "I am neither a Bill Tweed Democrat nor a Bill Carr Republican, but like Jefferson I am both a Democrat and a Republican in the true sense of the word." A Walla Walla paper says: "A few days since a Chinaman came over to the Pona wawa ferry and reported that at Fish spring, some ten miles from the ferry, an Indian robbed him of all his grub, blankets, coat and a ten dollar greenback. The Chinaman was just down from the Palouse mines, and as he was minus all these articles it is but reasonable to believe that he had been robbed, as they do not generally travel to and from the mines without being pretty well supplied for the journey."

The Olympia Courier of August 13th is responsible for the following: "Yesterday being the Sabbath, every one was rigged out in his best store clothes. A well known clergyman who sports a white plug hat, meeting a young man whose castor is of the tallest, blackest and shiniest kind, proposed a temporary change of tiles, which was agreed to. The black hat went to church and heard a good sermon, while the white hat, we are sorry to say, went down to the hotel and was a quiet spectator of an afternoon's bout at sinch. The youngster says that hat gave him the best luck he ever had, as he never got stuck once."

From the Olympia Courier of August 18th: At the death of Mr. Silas Galliher, some months since, he was holding a homestead in the vicinity of Tacoma. Shortly after his decease Mrs. Galliher moved down on the place and has made it her home since, and spent a good deal of money in improvements upon it. Some two weeks ago she came up to this place on a visit, and during her absence some one has jumped the claim. If the facts are as told us he stands no chance of "robbing a widow," however hard he may try, and in addition deserves a coat of tar adorned with feathers. We did not learn the individual's name or we should publish it.

Lung Yow, a Chinaman, was hung at Walla Walla last Friday. The Statesman, in speaking of the execution, says: "The hanging of Lung Yow is the first legal execution that has been had in Walla Walla county, and this, notwithstanding we have had scores and scores of murders, some of them characterized with circumstances of peculiar atrocity. In all these cases the offenders had either money or friends, and so thus escaped punishment. Lung Yow had neither money nor friends, and for him the law had no mercy. It is the old story. Gild crime with gold and the the bloodiest offender can snap his fingers at the law, but let the poor and friendless dip his hands in blood and all the enginery of the law is at once set at work to hunt him down."

A Strong Hint.—The Lebanon (Tennessee) Herald gets off the following:

We gently and as it were, unconsciously, pushed a paper weight toward the end of the table where she sat. Directly it attracted her attention. She looked at it, took it up, looked more earnestly and then, laying it gently down, she calmly rose, gathered her ample skirts about her and straightway took her leave, not even saying good bye. We hope she wasn't angry. Certainly nothing was further from our intentions than to give offense. We merely wished to attract her attention to the paper weight as a work of art. We regard it as a fine work of art and value it solely for that reason—but the effect it has on some visitors is remarkable and inexplicable. It is a small slab of crystal through which may be seen a sketch representing a skeleton, surrounded by this legend: This unfortunate editor was talked to death.

Brick Pomeroy says: "Hundreds of times have we been severely denounced for defending the cause of temperance on the ground that without the whisky vote Democracy is a dead duck."

RECENT DISCOVERIES IN METEOROLOGY.

During the last few years the attention of scientists has been directed to the investigation of solar phenomena more perhaps than any other subject. The discoveries made in regard to the condition of the sun's surface by means of spectrum analysis, have been such as to lead to a more careful consideration of the facts known before with the view of ascertaining if possible the causes by which the changes that have been observed on the appearance of the sun are produced and the laws by which they are governed. And it has been contended for some time by a few persons of acknowledged scientific attainments that some relation existed between the perturbations on the sun's surface and those of the terrestrial atmosphere. The study of the spots, and other irregularities on the sun which appear from time to time, it has consequently been claimed would afford man a key to the meteorology of our own planet. The scientific world has learned not to laugh at the theories that may be advanced by [illegible] of learning upon philosophical questions, howsoever chimerical or visionary [illegible] theories may at first appear to be. They have learned too many lessons at no [illegible] mortification to their pride, to ridicule a new idea unless it be one which from its very nature can never be proved [illegible] by absolute demonstration. So the idea of any connection between the [illegible] of the sun's surface and those on earth, has been met simply with skepticism by the majority of [illegible], and by others as a thing barely [illegible] of examination.

But the most recent investigations of the [illegible] it seem likely to show that the [illegible] advanced theories may prove to be [illegible]ounded. Meanwhile, Horn[illegible] of the Prague observatory, proclaims [illegible] of his observations, that the [illegible] barometric disturbances occur on [illegible] at the same time with the maxi[illegible] of the spots on the sun, and [illegible] A comparison of the rainfall at dif[illegible] for a series of years, seems [illegible] the theory that the disturb[illegible] on the sun's surface have some con[illegible] magnetic irregularities of our [illegible]

HONEST COMPANY OUTRAGED.

[illegible] of Harper's Weekly feels called to take up the cudgel in behalf of [illegible] Pacific Railway Company in its [illegible] with the Government. The [illegible] of Civilization" thinks it is clear [illegible] intended to give to the [illegible] the $27,23?,000 of bonds which [illegible] loaned, as a subsidy for constructing [illegible]; and this in the face of the stat[illegible] which says in so many words that the [illegible] are granted "upon condition that [illegible] company shall pay said bonds at maturity, and shall at all times transport [illegible] troops and munitions of war, supplies and public stores upon said railroad for the Government whenever required to do so by any department thereof at fair and reasonable rates, and that one half of all compensation for services rendered for the Government shall be applied to the payment of said bonds and interest until the whole amount is fully paid."

The company fails to pay principal or interest of the bonds, and a suit is instituted by the Attorney-General against the company to recover this, and to recover in addition the amount of Government money which the directors appropriated to themselves by the Credit Mobilier [illegible] The "Journal of Civilization [illegible] the charges made by the Government against the Union Pacific are simply childish. These simply childish charges are substantially that the Company has fraudulently divided among its directors and certain Government officers the magnificent subsidy which the Government gave it; has thus been compelled to encumber its road on which the Government holds a mortgage for a large amount of money outside, in order to make up for this theft; has refused to pay its debts to the Government or to anybody else and is insolvent. This sort of charges made by the principal creditor against a delinquent debtor are "simplish childish."

But the court before whom the case is pending does not regard the matter just as the "Journal of Civilization" does. The Judge evidently needs civilizing. He is so old-fogyish as to insist upon applying some of the old fashioned, homely rules of common honesty to the case, and has [illegible] the injunction prayed for, prohibit[illegible] [illegible] on the bonds held by the Credit Mobilier—the swindling directors ring,—and against the transfer on the books of the Company of any stock held by them. This arrests the progress of their fraudulent practices and sets them into a terrible commotion. Thus there appears a pretty fair prospect of the Government being able to make them disgorge their ill gotten gains. The great need of the country at this juncture is plenty of just such old fashioned and uncivilized Judges as this one.

THE BIBLE AND THE SCHOOLS.

Our readers recollect the excitement caused some time since by the order prohibiting the reading of the Bible in the public schools of Cincinnati. The matter was taken into the courts, where it was claimed that the basis of the entire social system of the United States was the morality of the Bible and that the order prohibiting its reading was in violation of the Constitution and void. But the court held differently and the case was appealed to the Supreme Court of the State which has recently rendered a decision affirming the decision of the court below. The Supreme Court say that a constitution that does not require religious instruction or the reading of religious books, can not be construed as prohibiting the State from excluding such books, and that the Legislature of Ohio, in conferring upon the Board of Education in Cincinnati the authority to determine what books should be used in the public schools, vested in that body the right to exclude any book, not excepting the Bible.

This decision appears to go to the bottom of the matter, and establish the right of school directors, trustees, etc., to exclude the Bible from the schools whenever they choose to do so. Whether the case from Cincinnati is in a situation to be carried up to the Supreme Court of the United States we are not informed. There appears to be considerable feeling on the subject among the advocates of Bible reading, and if it is possible for the case to be taken to the Supreme Court that will no doubt be done. An exchange says the decision of the court has taken many able lawyers by surprise. Just why they should be surprised at it, is not stated, and in the absence of such specification we confess it seems to us a little difficult to understand.

A REMARKABLE LETTER.

From the Boston Advertiser we learn that some time since the cashier of a New England bank sent to the Treasury at Washington two notes—one for $100 and one for $500—which had been mutilated. He requested the Secretary of the Treasury to return perfect notes in their stead, according to the law of Congress "in such cases made and provided." We can imagine his astonishment at receiving the following remarkable expression of Mr. Spinner's opinion, and his emotions on finding himself indicted for defacing United States notes. The whole affair is possessed of a refreshing degree of "coolness for the dog days." We quote from the Advertiser:

TREASURY OF THE UNITED STATES,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 7.

Sir: Your letter of the 1st instant was received yesterday by Adams Express Company. There came enclosed, as therein stated, two U. S. legal tender notes—one of the denomination of $500 and the other of $100. Both of these notes are entirely new, having never even been folded, and are perfectly clean, being without a spot or speck. For some bad purpose, probably a fraudulent one, with a view to the raising of other United States notes of smaller denominations to the value of these, more than one-tenth of each has been scissored out with a clean cut. Under the old regulations of the Treasury department that existed for more than ten years these new notes could have been redeemed for only nine-tenths of their face value. Sixty dollars would, under the old rules, have been deducted for these mutilations. These rules, unfortunately for the government, have been lately modified so that this penalty cannot be enforced. Under this more than generous modification you claim to have returned to you new United States notes of like denominations under the government contract at the expense of the United States. The charge to the government by the Express Company for their transportation both ways would be $1 20. For the dog days, I consider this request decidedly cool. First, you or your client willfully mutilate clean new notes and then you ask the government not only to replace them with other new unmutilated notes to be in their turn for aught I know, mutilated and returned with a like request for other new notes but to pay the expense and run the risk of transportation both ways. This, to my mind is piling it on pretty steep. You not only burn with a hot iron, but you ask the burned one to pay for heating the poker. If you will turn to the fifty eighth section of the National Banking Law you will find that if any person had treated two of your banknotes in the way these two United States have been you could recover by an action in any court having jurisdiction $50 for each of the mutilations. Now what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Ought not the perpetrators of these mutilations be made to respond in like manner? Under the circumstances it has been concluded that the notes be retained at any rate until the pieces that were cut out of them shall be returned to this office and until the apparent fraudulent or malicious mutilation be satisfactorily explained to the Department. Respectfully yours,

F. E. SPINNER,
Treasurer of the United States.

The Republicans of Minnesota, whose platform we publish this morning like those of Iowa whose ringing declaration of principles we laid before our readers a short time since, take high grounds upon the vital questions now agitating the public mind throughout the country. They demand legislative control of the rates of freight and passengers on the railways and the fixing of low rates; denounce the various swindles and steals of public officers which have been enacted or come to light during the past year and call upon Congress to repeal the act raising the salaries of officers as the first step in a reform that shall produce an economical administration of public affairs. This is the right sort of talk. We should like it better if it contained a recommendation to revise the laws in relation to the salaries of the civil list so as to give our ill paid judiciary something above starvation wages and take away somewhat from the fatness of the sinecures and semi-sinecures that now furnish such powerful bribes in the hands of corrupt politicians.

A number of colored gentlemen from Louisiana are in Harrisburg, Pa., awaiting invitation to address the people of the Northern States on the wants and necessities of the colored people of the South. They were sent from Louisiana by a mass meeting of colored citizens to explain the interests of that caste. A New York dispatch says that the party is composed of Colonel James Lewis, Administrator of Public Improvements in New Orleans, General T. Morris Chester, two State Senators, and W. G. Brown, State Superintendent of [illegible] but we are not informed how the [illegible] get along in the absence of the others. Probably it is none of our business. [illegible] business of sending delegations to explain the politics of Louisiana must be getting rather tiresome to Eastern people. However we are informed that these tourists are in the interest of no party or clique. They do not approve the [illegible] and unification scheme. They say that [illegible] and party should get out of the State government and it would be well for them if [illegible] term. After that [illegible] the government would [illegible] the power of Democracy. These gentlemen we are [illegible] hope to have a wide hearing in the North and look for good results therefrom.

The Boston [illegible] publishes a long abstract of General Butler's defense of the salary grab as a matter of general news and [illegible] of the whole thing [illegible] the following brief remarks. The entire letter of General Butler defending his course on the salary bill of which an abstract was made public several days since has at last appeared. It is a characteristic letter in all respects and is as open to criticism and censure as is the course which he takes seven long columns to defend. The people of the whole country have made up their minds in regard to this matter and Gen. Butler is whistling against the wind as well as whistling out of tune.

offering the best security of any Fire Insurance Company or Association in the world.

THIRD—It can carry large risks as its policies are re-insured by the above mentioned Companies so that the PHŒNIX alone can carry the same line that all three companies would take separately.

FOURTH—It requires but one set of proofs in case of loss, thus giving the security of three Companies without the trouble of dealing with separate Corporations.

On these solid merits, viz: Capacity to carry the largest risks, the amplest possible security, the simplest adjustment in case of loss, and the prompt and equitable payment of all just claims,

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 20 1873

CITY.

LOOK OUT FOR SHARKS!—During the heated term [illegible] cooling waters of the Wallamet contribute [illegible] the comfort of those of our citizens who are partial to the wholesome practice of [illegible]. But we would suppose that the presence of active wide awake sharks in our river would prove a decided drawback to the enjoyment of the average swimmer. We do not wish to create a sensation and do not positively assert that the Wallamet is thus inhabited but in conversation with a gentleman of unquestioned veracity he informed us that about two years ago a shark of ample proportions had frequently been seen at various points on the west side of the river and that he had no [illegible] but that occasionally specimens of this voracious monster found their way from the ocean into the Columbia and Wallamet. To strengthen this proposition the gentleman informed us that a shark was caught on a trot line at the Cascades about the year 1856. We have also heard the assertion made by old inhabitants of the country that at an early day sharks were seen frequently, or at intervals, along the Columbia and Wallamet rivers. If such stories have any foundation there is no good reason why these voracious monsters of the deep do not inhabit our waters still. We venture the assertion that if the truth of these statements could be known the public bath houses of the city would be more generously patronized than at present. Fancy the idea of a huge shark turning himself loose among a crowd of swimmers! What a meal he would enjoy. Persons who have the temerity to venture into the water in the face of these startling facts, and in the teeth of voracious sharks, should never go swimming unarmed. Take a revolver, penknife or toothpick along, or else adopt the safer and more simple method—do not go into the water at all.

A FITTING MONUMENT.—While strolling through the Lone Fir Cemetery a few days since we observed a very handsome monument which has just been erected above the last resting place of the late James G. Flowerdew (of the firm of Hewitt Flowerdew & Co.) who departed life more than a year ago, from injuries sustained by being thrown from a horse. This monument was made at the marble shop of Mr. Wm. Young of this city. Both the design and finish is of a character highly creditable to the taste and skill of the sculptor. The hight of the monument from base to summit is over eight feet. The base is made of blocks of Oregon stone, of rustic design. This foundation is about two feet high. On this rests a smaller foundation of marble, on the front side of which is carved in large raised letters the name, "Flowerdew." Next comes another block of pure, white marble, on the side of which is cut the following inscription: "Sacred to the Memory of James Gray Flowerdew, Aged 38 Years. Whom God in His Wisdom and Love Called from This Earth to a Holier and Happier State, July 22, 1872." Above this is carved the Masonic emblem, of which Order the deceased was a member in high standing at the time of his death. The upper portion of the monument consists of a column of marble, which constitutes a cross of [illegible] very handsomely sculptured and polished. There are but few more beautiful monuments in the Lone Fir Cemetery than this one, which, pointing with its pure and snow-like shaft towards Heaven, tells the passer that below the green sodded turf rest the mortal remains of James G. Flowerdew, who in life was so universally beloved and honored, and whose sad, untimely death was so generally deplored.

BAPTISMAL FONT.—Mr. William Young of this city is at present engaged in making the baptismal font for the new Trinity Church. This font, which is of unique design, and of very handsome workmanship, is made wholly of Oregon stone. The entire hight of the font from the lower side of the pedestal to the top of the cap which forms the receptical for the water, is about four feet. On top of a square foundation rests an octagonal shaped column about two feet and a half high. At the top of this column is placed an octagonal shaped cap. The top of this cap is scooped out in a circular manner, closely resembling a bowl. It is intended to contain water, and will hold about two gallons. Around on the eight sides of the cap, gothic panels are carved. In the center of each of these panels are raised figures or emblems of the Episcopal Church, such as the cross, dove, Maltese cross, crown, mitre, sacred monograms etc. The following words are cut around the edge of the font in German text: "One Lord, one faith, one baptism." The font will be completed by the time the new church is to be consecrated.

CHINAMAN DROWNED.—Last Saturday forenoon, about 10 o'clock, as the steamer Mary Bell was nearing Tongue Point with the barkentine Jane A. Falkinburg in tow, the Chinese cook, Charley Land as he was called, in attempting to draw a bucket of water from the river fell overboard and was drowned. Efforts were made to recover the body but they were unavailing. Capt. Albert Gray was in a boat within twenty feet of the drowning man when he disappeared from sight the last time and was lost forever. The Chinaman bore a good reputation for industry and veracity, and at the time of his death had on his person a considerable sum of money. It is supposed that he had about $150 in his pocket when he was drowned. At latest accounts the body had not been recovered. We learn that a Chinese firm in Astoria have offered a reward of $50 for the recovery of the body of the unfortunate person.

WHAT IS IT?—At the assay office of Mr. J. H. Fisk, can be seen a curiously carved piece of copper, which is well calculated to create the inquiry, "What is it?" after a careful inspection. This singularly shaped piece of metal was exhumed a few days ago while the men were engaged in excavating for the Stark street sewer. It was found at about the depth of eight feet. In shape and workmanship it bears some resemblance to a bracket, or the support for a small table stove or other article of furniture. The metal is rough and rudely polished and appears to have been in an unfinished condition when buried. For what purpose it was made, by whom and how it came to be buried many feet below the surface of the earth are questions we shall not engage to answer, but refer the article in question to those who may feel sufficient [illegible] or interest to discover for themselves.

TEMPORARY ENGINE HOUSE.—The temporary wooden house erected by Protection Engine Co. No. 4, near the corner of First and Jefferson streets opposite the brick building which was destroyed on the 2d inst. is completed. Some days ago, before the roof was fairly on, the fire engine was housed in the new building. This new building, although quite a temporary structure, will answer the present and future requirements of the Company—affording a house to shelter the fire engine and a place in which to meet—until the city shall take hold of the matter and rebuild. For their enterprise and pluck this Company is entitled to much credit. As yet no building has been erected for Vigilance Hook and Ladder Co. Temporary quarters are furnished that Company and the truck, ladders, etc. at the house of Columbian No. [illegible]

HORSE THIEF.—A gentleman just from Clackamas county [illegible] informs us that about three weeks ago a young man named Jones, which [illegible] been working for [illegible] months in that county, [illegible] horse from one of his neighbors [illegible] to Albany, intending to return in a few days. Since that time not one word has been heard from the man. Several days ago the person from whom the horse had been borrowed wrote a letter to Albany making inquiries [illegible] Jones—if he had arrived there, etc. To his surprise he received a response which stated that Jones was not in Albany, that he had not arrived there to the knowledge of the writer. This caused the lender to open his eyes and [illegible] the supposition is not improbable that the animal has been stolen. Jones has probably left the country and forgot to return the borrowed [illegible]

ORPHAN'S HOME.—An exchange says: The new building being erected at Vancouver by the Sisters of Charity to be used as an Orphans Home will be one of the best regulated institutions of the kind in this section of the North Pacific. All of the modern improvements will be used in its every appointment. Sixty rooms will be heated by the use of a hot-air furnace, and with water, etc., in various places throughout, will make it of the [illegible] durable and convenient [illegible]

THE RELIEF CONCERT.—A very large audience filled the capacious Masonic Hall last night on the occasion of the grand vocal and instrumental concert given in aid of the fund for the relief of sufferers by the late conflagration. Most of the vocal and instrumental talent of our city had kindly volunteered their services and this announcement was sufficient to attract a large assemblage. Where so much proficiency was displayed by all the participants it would be hardly [illegible] particularize, but we cannot omit to [illegible] the solo by Miss Cardwell in the first part, "Stay with Me," which elicited the most rapturous applause and a perfect shower of bouquets, and the solo "The Storm" in the second part, which met with a similar reception. The gem of the instrumental portion of the programme [illegible] was the Overture to Martha in the second part—the orchestra displaying a proficiency that was really gratifying, when we consider the limited opportunities they have had for practice together. The vocal solo in the second part of the programme, "The Wreck of the Hesperus," by Mr. C. Lancaster, earned for that gentleman a most enthusiastic recognition from the audience. The principal solo by Mrs. [illegible] in being encored the audience by storm, and for an encore she gave "The Last Rose of Summer." On retiring she was the recipient of many floral tributes. The rendition of the choruses evinced the very careful training received from Professor Wyatt. We venture to say that an audience was never better satisfied than that present last night—everybody seemed delighted. We were unable to learn the exact amount secured for the fund, but presume that at least $500 were received from the sale of tickets alone. This sum was somewhat increased by the sale of bouquets. The occasion will long be remembered by those so fortunate as to be present, and we can assure those who were not that they missed a rare musical treat. The gentlemen and ladies who so kindly volunteered their services are entitled to the hearty thanks of the music loving public and will be held in kindly remembrance.

WALLING'S PEACH PLUMS.—Mr. Walling, the well known nurseryman, has placed on our table a box filled with the most choice lot of dried peach plums, of which variety he has an abundance. He has superior facilities for drying these plums, and can dry on an average about 2,750 pounds per day. He has four acres covered with plum trees each of which are eight years old. These trees have produced the present season about five tons of dried plums and returned besides in green and dried fruit about 3,000 pounds. This has been quite a profitable enterprise, as dried plums readily command 20 cents per pound. On an average five pounds of green plums make one of dried.

GENEROUS DONATION.—A few days ago a well known lady in this city received a check on one of the banks for $100 drawn by Mr. G. Mitchler, the flour dealer and agent of San Francisco. An accompanying letter stated that the above sum was donated to the sufferers by the late fire, to be applied in whatever manner the lady to whom the amount was sent, should deem necessary and judicious. It is needless to state that the generous donation was thankfully accepted and a portion of the sum has already been expended to relieve wants and supply pressing necessities in more than one instance.

FINE SHEEP.—By the steamship John L. Stephens which arrived here last evening twenty head of fine Spanish Merino bucks arrived direct from California. These sheep were shipped here by Messrs. Saxe Bros. of San Francisco. The fleeces of these blooded animals have not been removed, so that persons wishing to examine them can do so. They will be kept on exhibition in the city for a day or two, when they will be carried to Roseburg.

A CHALLENGE.—A cotemporary is responsible for the following: "We are informed on postive authority that Mr. Le Chapelle, the proprietor of the boat house, will challenge the Dreadnaught crew, or any other crew in the State, to row a race for any distance for from $200 to $400 a side. This gentleman backs the Occidental boat and crew against any other crew or craft on Oregon waters."

REMEDY FOR SMALLPOX.—We have been handed the following remedy for smallpox, said to be used with remarkable success by an eminent London physician, which we publish for what it is worth: Sulphate of zinc one grain, foxglove (digitalis) half table spoonful of sugar mixed with two tablespoonfuls of water. This perscription should be taken every hour.

FINISHED.—The new engine house for Tiger Engine Co. No. 5, on Fourth street beyond Market is finished and ready for occupancy. A few days ago the finishing touches were given by the painters and now the building is ready for service.

TO SAIL.—The steamer John L. Stephens, which arrived here last evening from San Francisco, is announced to sail hence on Friday morning at 6 o'clock.

ARRIVED.—The John L. Stephens reached here last evening bringing a large assorted cargo and many passengers.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The "compositors" referred to in the Bulletin beg leave to deny that they "make night hideous" or take boats without permission. The Bulletin "local" would possibly be more correct in his squibs if he took some water in his.

Linen coats and straw hats below par—ice not so extremely popular—ice cream taken in more limited quantities and at greater intervals—the mercury down in the mouth—less caloric in the air—everybody happy again, and all because the sky has been overcast with clouds and the prospects for rain are not so remote.

TO THE PUBLIC.

We are now getting on the way [illegible] new and fresh stock of fine furniture, which will be superior in quality and newer in design than the one destroyed by the fire, and which we will offer for sale on advantageous terms. Meanwhile we are well prepared to supply the present demand from our temporary location, corner of Fifth and Taylor streets, near the U. S. Custom House. [illegible]

The monument will be of handsome, imposing appearance and a most enduring and appropriate piece of sculpture to mark the place which contains all that remains mortal of the late Major Simeon Francis.

BLACK STATES AND WHITE

The proposition to create a new state formed of the upper counties of Mississippi and those counties in Tennessee which lie west of the Tennessee river and to be called the State of Jackson receives an explanation from the Wilmington (N. C.) Journal, a Democratic paper, as follows: "The movement finds its greatest impetus in the desire of the white people of North Mississippi to escape from the difficulties of negro domination. The rich lands of the lower Mississippi Valley are constantly receiving an increase of colored population from the older States of the South, over 30,000 colored people having left Georgia alone within the last twelve months for Mississippi and Louisiana. In view of the probable continuance of this large and increasing emigration of the colored race many intelligent men of those two States have lost all hope of ever securing the political control of those States to their own race, and as a remedy for the evil the people of North Mississippi, where the whites are in the majority, seek annexation to Tennessee or the formation of a new State. While it cannot be denied that the evil of which the people of North Mississippi complain is a very grievous one, it must be admitted that the remedy proposed for its redress is one not altogether pleasant to contemplate. If it be true, as represented, that the colored people are migrating to the lower Mississippi lands and that the white people are leaving them, and that from time to time many large cotton and sugar plantations are being abandoned by their former owners and divided and sold to colored people, it will be difficult to prevent the project for the formation of the new State of Jackson and to prevent projects for the formation of other new States from receiving constantly increasing strength. The same principle of segregation, if it shall be carried out by the people of North Mississippi, will doubtless lead to radical changes in the State of Louisiana, Alabama, and Florida, also, and thereby surrender one of the finest and most fertile lands of the South to the possession of purely black commonwealths. The evil is a desperate one, but the remedy scarcely less so because of the almost unconquerable love and attachment that people have for their homes and their birth places. The wrong and injury that will be done to the people on the Gulf coast if they shall be compelled to abandon their homes and their property will be incalculable on this account, the remedy seems a deplorable one; but great as the wrong and incalculable as the injury may be, the consequences of unification and amalgamation of the races will be far more disastrous.

The other objections to the proposed method of avoiding the solution of the great problem of the day, to wit: How long can two races, separate and distinct in color, at least with equal rights before the law, occupy a country in common without fighting, or without amalgamating, are not worthy of grave consideration in view of the opposing advantages. The Northern press does not take the same view of the question, and looking at it from a Northern partisan standpoint it is not to be expected that it should. The congregation of the colored race into a few States of their own in a political point of view will not be objectionable to Conservatives in the South or indeed in the North."

Officers and soldiers who served in the army, [illegible] and citizens everywhere, join in recommending Davis's Pain Killer to be the best internal and external family medicine ever invented. That's our experience.

GENERAL NOTES

[illegible]

The Beginnings of Sickness

Never trifle with what are called small ailments. A disorder easy of control at first if neglected for a few weeks may become a mortal disease. Be especially careful not to let debility gain upon you, for it is the door through which all maladies enter the system. If you feel languid, inert and to use a common expression, "as if there was no life left in you," resort at once to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. That great vegetable tonic will supply the vitality you so urgently need. It is nerve food. By its tonic action the stomach is so invigorated that digestion becomes regular, easy, perfect, while its mild cathartic properties relieve the bowels from obstructions and its alterative operation beneficially affects all the secretive organs. For the miseries of dyspepsia and they include almost every unpleasant feeling that belongs to physical disease and mental wretchedness, this potent tonic is a certain and speedy balm.

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

Dr. J. S. Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus is a preparation combining all the valuable medical qualities of the Eucalyptus, which is cultivated in nearly every California garden for its medical utility, having become the household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and URINARY CANAL, and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It seems to have a direct affinity for the GENITO URINARY ORGANS and stimulates and cures them by its alterative, healing and balsamic properties more effectually than any other known remedy.

It is an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the mucous and serous membranes, such as BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH, NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY, DYSPEPSIA, LEUCORRHOEA, etc.

This preparation is the result of Dr. Coleman's experiments with the medicinal properties of the tree in the U. S. Marine Hospital in San Francisco in 1871 and 1872, where he had unusual facilities for testing the various methods of preparing the remedy and its uses. It can be relied upon as certain to give the best results and hundreds of testimonials of its efficacy can be seen at his office 405 Kearney street, San Francisco.

COLEMAN'S DOUBLE EXTRACT OF EUCALYPTUS is a powerful yet harmless febrifuge, and is a special preparation for the treatment of the malarious fevers of our interior valleys, and is warranted to cure any case of FEVER AND AGUE treated with it according to directions, while the baneful results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies of those diseases are entirely avoided.

FOR PHYSICIANS, Coleman's Fluid Extract of Eucalyptus in 1 lb bottles.

Beware of imitations and take none but COLEMAN'S. For sale everywhere and by HODGE, CALEF & CO., Wholesale Druggists, Portland, Sole Agents for Oregon.

A RAVIN'.

A POEM AFTER E. A. POE.

Once, upon a midnight dreary, as I slumbered, cross and weary,
Come from several horrid boring books of miscellaneous lore;
While they haunted me 'n napping, suddenly there came a tapping
As of some confounded rapping, rapping at my bed-room door,
"'Tis some rascal" low I muttered, "who's too screwed to find his door—
Only this and nothing more!"

Ah! I vividly remember it was in a cold December
And of fire I had no ember till the price of coals should lower;
Eagerly I wished the morrow—being hard up again I'll borrow,
Even although it end in sorrow from an "Uncle" loved of yore—
From a useful prosp'rous Uncle, who to me is worth a score,
Surely this, if not much more!

And the creaking, low, uncertain rustling of the dimity curtin
Made me shiver in such style as I had never done before,
So that now to still the beating of my pulse I lay repeating
"Who the mischief's still entreating entrance at a fellow's door?
'Tis some staggering Bacchanalian, hammering coolly at my door,
That's what 'tis, and nothing more!"

Up I got, and ope'd the shutter, where, without the slightest flutter,
Sat a dissipated Tom-cat coolly down upon the floor;
Though he looked exceeding shady, not a moment stopped or stayed he,
But, with impudence unheard of, walked right to the bed-room door,
Perched upon a corner cupboard just beside my bed-room door,
Whisked his tail and nothing more!

Then, this scraggy "Tom" beguiling my sad fancy into smiling,
By the gay and rakish contour of the countenance it wore;
"May my head be closely shaven, if I don't believe I'm ravin',
[illegible]ly, battered, graceless Tom-cat, wandering from the nightly shore,
What's your name, you gay Lothario? tell me ere you leave my door?"
Quoth the Thomas "Never more!"

Much I marveled this ungainly beast to hear discourse so plainly
Though its answer little meaning,—little relevancy bore:
For I hope we're all agreeing that no living human being [illegible] had the chance of seeing Tom-cat near his bed-room door,
[illegible] Tom-cat on cupboard just beside his bed-room door.
With such a name as "Never more."

But as yet, "[illegible] of "riling," since the cat provoked my smiling,
[illegible] I d[illegible] a damaged easy chair athwart the [illegible] door;
[illegible] upon it sinking, (for t'was giving way like [illegible]),
[illegible] myself to thinking what this vagabond of yore,
this [illegible], low, immoral, gaunt and vagabond of yore
[illegible] by squalling "Never more!"

"[illegible]," said I, "thing of evil! Prophet still, if cat or devil!
[illegible] tempter sent, or whether tempest tossed thee here ashore:
[illegible], and all undaunted, in this room they say that's haunted,
If you are at all enchanted, tell me truly, I implore
[illegible] be ever cheaper?—Tell me,—tell, me, [illegible]
Quoth the Tom-cat "Never more!"

THE TICHBORNE CASE.

[illegible] FOR THE DEFENSE—A WIGLESS COUNSEL—KENEALY'S ARGUMENT—THE PROS-

LONDON, Tuesday, July 22, 1873.

[illegible] an interval of one week to allow time for the counsel for the defendant to prepare [illegible], the Court of Queen's Bench reassembled yesterday to proceed with the case. [illegible] and interest were felt by [illegible] to the course which would be [illegible] by Dr. Kenealy on behalf of his [illegible] client. Rumor had asserted, first, [illegible] counsel, overwhelmed by [illegible] against him, was in the language [illegible], about to throw up the sponge. [illegible] it was said that Dr. Kenealy would [illegible] his speech, and would then say [illegible] in the absence of funds, and in the presence of the [illegible] inexhaustible resources [illegible] on the other side, he was [illegible] to proceed further, and so would throw [illegible] against the Crown of prosecuting a [illegible] man. These were the two most [illegible] the case. Few, in[illegible] that after fifty-seven days of [illegible] proof showing that the defendant was not Tichborne but Orton, the de[illegible] with any attempt to re[illegible] weight of testimony.

AN [illegible] SUSPENSION.

[illegible] of this kind were doomed to [illegible]. Yesterday was one of extreme heat, [illegible] after the court met one of the jury swooned and was carried out of the [illegible]. This was an incident which naturally [illegible]. It has often been felt [illegible] in a trial which would occupy the greater [illegible] of nine months, risk of fatality to some one of twelve middle aged jurymen was an [illegible] for consideration, inasmuch [illegible] would render it absolutely necessary to begin the trial over again. The [illegible] of Queen's Bench and, indeed, all the [illegible] "law courts of Westminster," are [illegible] deficient in ventilation, and when [illegible] met yesterday the thermometer [illegible] at not less than 87 in the shade. The juryman who fainted had driven down in an open [illegible], exposed to the heat of the sun. He [illegible] was anxious to return to his duty, but [illegible] on the advice of medical men he was [illegible] upon to take rest for the day, and [illegible] half an hour's sitting the court adjourned [illegible] this morning.

THE CASE OF THE DEFENSE.

A large crowd of spectators thronged the [illegible] of Westminster Hall to see the claimant [illegible]. During the interval he had been [illegible] in starring the provinces, and had oc[illegible] himself with pigeon-shooting and other congenial pursuits. That the exercise had [illegible] with him was seen by his fresh and [illegible] look, as he entered the already-crowded court and took his accustomed seat at the small table in front of the bar, between his [illegible] and clerk. Nearly an hour was occupied in technical legal objections as to the validity of former trials, upon which the present [illegible] depends. These were all quashed by the [illegible], and Dr. Kenealy was left to begin his [illegible]. The learned gentleman, who has not hitherto held a position of the first rank at the English Bar, preceded his speech by requesting that in consequence of the extreme heat, he might be allowed to address the jury without his wig. The request was a strange one in view of the strict conservatism of the English Bar, but was nevertheless assented to by the Lord Chief Justice, under, as he said, the exceptional circumstances. Dr. Kenealy, with wigless head covered with short black hair, ornamented with spectacles and his naturally bushy beard, rose to address the jury. He began in a low voice by thanking them for the indulgence afforded him in the time allowed for preparing his defense. He then drew their attention to the fact that the agents for the prosecution had been engaged in this case now for years, while he had had but three weeks of preparation before he entered upon the conduct of the defense. Dr. Kenealy then gradually went into what proved to be a remarkably powerful and very able speech. Upward of two thousand allegations of falsehood, he said, had to be met on the part of the defendant. The case for the prosecution had not been conducted with the gravity which became the importance of the issues, but had been made a farce by the jokes of Queen's Counsel, to whom it had been reserved to appear in that place for the first time as Queen's jesters. The case had for years attracted the attention of the whole civilized world wherever the English language was spoken. Some people looked upon it as the realization of the fiction of the Wandering Jew, where a religious body, through the agency of Rodin, a man of great intellect, entered into a conspiracy to deprive a man of millions of money. On the other hand it was said that the defendant was a vulgar butcher out of Wapping, who had conceived the notion of ousting families who had held their estates for centuries. He had been assailed in language the most violent ever known, by a distinguished member of the Bar, and had been called a conspirator, perjurer, forger, slanderer, and felon and he had been charged with crimes as foul as ever justice raised her sword to strike. He did not charge the witnesses for the prosecution with perjury. Many of them, he believed, swore to that which they thought was true, but he believed at the same time that some of them were persons who knew well that defendant was Sir Roger Tichborne. "If he be the greatest scamp," continued the learned counsel, "that ever walked the earth, you will be animated by a desire to do what is right, heedless of consequences to others, and regardless of what he may do with his estates when he gets them. Right, and right alone, will guide you, and you will not allow to weigh in the balance of your fair and honest understanding the ingenious things put forward by my learned friend any more than those acts of this man's life, which certainly do not entitle him universal respect." Referring to the apparent strangeness of a man whose family had lived on these estates in England since before the Norman Conquest, taking to a wild course of life, he drew attention to the case of the heir to the earldom of Annesley, who was sold by his uncle as a slave, but ultimately returned and recovered possession of his title and estates. And how many thousand broad acres were there in England now from which the rightful owners were excluded? Roger, surrounded by priests and watched by that lady Tichborne upon whose graves those Seymours and Tichbornes were piling every detriment they could, went forth at last like Cain, into the wilderness heedless, abandoned, dissolute, careless of what became of him. He would forget all, he would dip his brain in Lethe, and all his former life would pass from his memory. If really a designing butcher, he could, during the years he was with Lady Tichborne, have sapped from her every particle of information respecting Roger's life. But no, the old Tichborne pride remained in his haughty heart, and he disdained the arts which a Wapping butcher would have used. For years he had been smoking, snuffing, and dissecting birds and stuffing them, and had been a member of that snobbish club of which Lord Bellew was so distinguished an ornament. Lord Bellew seduced his friend's wife—Roger Tichborne seduced his cousin. The tendency of Roman Catholic teaching, he argued, was to keep the pupils in ignorance, and as for snuffing, some commentators had found that it was to indulgence in this irritant that Napoleon owned his last false move at Waterloo. Life at Stonyhurst, life in a garrison town, where he was subjected to unbearable insults by his brother officers, was depicted by the learned counsel, and in contrast was drawn a flowery picture of the boundless prairie where the scent of tea-trees was wafted on the breeze, and where, to a man like Roger Tichborne, a glorious career of freedom must have seemed heaven itself. The penchant of persons in high life for associating with vagabonds was pointed out, and as for friends, they were as those in the parable, who, when they saw the son, said, "This is the heir; come, let us kill him and seize his inheritance." His letters were those of a man who had once been a gentleman, and were essentially different from those of Arthur Orton. Half a hundred witnesses from Wapping could be called who would say defendant was not Orton, and he would be able to show that people wanted to keep him out of his estates, because these ladies and gentlemen of the county did not wish to associate with him and the wife he had picked up God knows where. None of the friends who believed in him at the last trial would desert him now. Popular instinct, which saw in him a victim of a powerful faction, had supported him, and but for the subscriptions of the public he must have taken his family to the work-house. He had had the misfortune to excite female influence against him through that affair with his cousin, which ought never to have been told, but which no imposter would ever have thought of inventing, because it was of no use to his cause and utterly damnatory in moral opinion. Later in the day the learned counsel attacked the priests, especially in relation to their influence over Lady Tichborne, and he said he would be able to call at least one witness who would be able to prove that Roger Tichborne had a brown mark on his side and a peculiarity of the thumb similar to those on the claimant.

THE IMPRESSION.

The general impression conveyed by the speech was not very favorable. There is every probability that the case will extend over several weeks.

Our local money market maintains a very fair condition, and business men are not hard to find who claim that the prospects for the remainder of the summer and fall are very encouraging. We have been informed that there will be no lack of funds in this market to purchase grain from this time on, and that prices will only be limited by those of the markets to which our products are shipped.

The prospects, however, for a liberal supply of loanable funds to rebuild and re-establish the business in that part of our city which was burned, is not so encouraging. We regret this, as what affects one portion of our community affects all in kind, if not in extent. The offers of funds are still made, however, at rates which would once have been thought quite reasonable for our State, but which are hardly justifiable in the present dull condition of trade, and the general reduction that has taken place in almost every thing except "money hire."

That there is a bountiful supply of loanable funds in the San Francisco market is generally conceded; but, for some reason, it is not in general circulation. Acceptable security can obtain all that may be required, and capitalists are rather anxious to make investments. The demand for interior purposes has not been urgent on San Francisco banks, those scattered throughout the State being well supplied, and able to meet the majority of local wants.

Some curious facts have lately been discovered relative to the absorption of gold and silver by the Egyptians, Moors, Chinese, and people of India. Once arrived in those countries, almost all transit of the precious metals ceases. A French author says that the Moors hide away some £20,000,000 a year, and the Emperor of Morocco has filled seventeen large rooms with gold and silver. The Parsees are noted hoarders of silver, which they collect in vast quantities, and cast into solid pieces, which can neither be taken away nor used for any purpose. It is alleged that not less than $70,000,000 are absorbed and hoarded every year by Oriental nations.

Trade with China.

A report recently prepared at the British Legation in Pekin shows that between 1864 and 1871 the foreign trade of China increased from £31,[illegible] to £45,915,193—namely, the imports into China from £15,388,073 in 1864 to £23,457,028 in 1871; and the exports from China from £16,201,953 in 1864 to £22,458,165 in 1871. The customs revenue increased from £2,624,752 in 1864 to £3,738,715 in 1871. Great Britain has the lion's share of the trade. The British trader paying at least three-fourths of the customs duties, and as these are at least five per cent ad valorem, amounted in 1872 to £3,850,000, it is estimated that British trade with China in that year amounted to £56,000,000 sterling. The trade of the United States with China is stated at only £3,629,[illegible] in 1871, but the British Secretary of Legation states that the progress of the United States trade with China since 1864 has been relatively greater than Great Britain's, and the Americans are likely, eventually, to prove Britain's most formidable competitor. The value of the imports of cotton goods into China has increased from £4,385,180 in 1867 to £6,[illegible] in 1871, but the imports of woolen goods declined in the same period from £2,217,767 to £1,429,765. The value of the silk exports from China in 1871 was £7,[illegible], and of tea, £11,870,000.

Price of Wool in New York.

From Walter Brown & Sons' Wool Circular we extract the following:

The month of July has developed a more settled character in the Wool trade than has existed for a year past. Manufacturers have been somewhat encouraged by an increased demand for their productions, and, satisfied that prices of the raw material have now reached a reasonably low basis, they have shown a tendency to purchase desirable fleeces at quoted rates, which is quite gratifying to the seller, who for so long a time has found it a difficult matter to make his own views correspond with those of the buyer.

The principal feature of the month was the news from the London auction sales. At the opening a decided advance was established, which [illegible] increased as the sales progressed. The immediate effect of this rise was a [illegible] on the part of Wool dealers that for the present the staple would suffer no further depreciation, and for the next few months values could be maintained. In the country, however, quite an excitement followed the first advices of this advance, and many operators raised their buying figures to the prevailing ideas of [illegible] growers and in opposition to the expressed [illegible] of Eastern correspondents have contracted purchases [illegible] on a basis of [illegible] for Ohio fleeces.

Most of woolen mills are now running on fine goods and the wools required have been in best request during the month. Dealers, convinced that no material improvement is probable as the season advances, have met the market right along thus avoiding any accumulation of this class. For medium fleeces there has been only a moderate inquiry, with values still somewhat unsettled. Coarse and common wools are decidedly neglected, and, except where they are wanted for backing of fine heavy cloths, have to be sold for very low goods or blankets, and at correspondingly low figures.

We are of the opinion that the next few weeks will see no material change in the value of fleece, and that country dealers will gain nothing by holding back their purchases. In fact, we think they will rather help their interests by prompt sales and avoid loss of shrinkage and the expenses of carrying stock.

Miscellaneous.

There were thirteen ships of an aggregate tonnage of 16,[illegible] tons, discharged at the port of San Francisco on the 11th inst., according to the Commercial Herald.

San Francisco is just now crowded with people. Hotels are all full, streets are thronged, and the number of [illegible]. [illegible] August, [illegible] of the Central Pacific Railroad has furnished [illegible] for the month of July. [illegible] The arrivals by sea [illegible] including 2002 from Oregon and [illegible] from Panama, [illegible] from Australia. The departures were [illegible] for Panama, [illegible] for China and Japan. The [illegible] for the month show a [illegible] over [illegible] departures, leaving a gain of 2915.

The average price of best household coal in London in 1869 was 18s 9d; in 1870 18s 6d; in 1871, 19s 3d; in 1872, 24s, and in 1873 up to the present time, 32s 6d.

A Washington dispatch of the 11th says it is probable the Secretary of the Treasury may recommend Congress to make pilots of all steamers Government officers, and require them before taking a vessel out of port, to be fully satisfied that she has complied with the law in every respect.

Shipping Intelligence.

The Astorian says: "Capt. Brown, for some time past chief officer of the barkentine Jane A. Falkinburg, will go out as master on the next voyage in place of Captain Wales, who goes in the Clara Louise."

The schooner Margaret is in the river from Honolulu with 2,287 kegs sugar, 70 bunches bananas, 6,000 limes, and 20 dozen pine apples. She sailed from Honolulu on the 19th of July.

The Webfoot, Orient and Superior are all due at this port from San Francisco.

The Forward and Falkinburg are taking on additions to their cargoes at Astoria.

Messrs. Corbitt & Macleay, who have recently purchased the Clara Louise, will dispatch her to Japan under command of Capt. Forbes, late of the Falkinburg.

The John L. Stephens, from San Francisco, arrived at 7 o'clock this evening. She is announced to sail on her return next Friday.

LYON'S

KATHAIRON

Only 50 Cents per Bottle.

It promotes the GROWTH, PRESERVES the COLOR, and increases the Vigor and BEAUTY of the HAIR.

OVER THIRTY YEARS AGO LYON'S KATHAIRON FOR THE HAIR was first placed in the market by Professor E. Thomas Lyon, a graduate of Princeton College. The name is derived from the Greek "KATHRO," signifying to cleanse, purify, rejuvenate, or restore. The favor it has received and the popularity it has obtained, is unprecedented and incredible. It increases the GROWTH and BEAUTY of the HAIR. It is a delightful dressing. It eradicates dandruff. It prevents the Hair from turning gray. It keeps the head cool, and gives the hair a rich, soft, glossy appearance. It is the SAME in QUANTITY and QUALITY as it was over a QUARTER of a CENTURY AGO, and is sold by all Druggists and Country Stores at only 50 Cents per Bottle.

Woman's Glory is Her Hair.
